America let us get past all of the “-isms”
and “political correctness” and prepare for negative global geologic interventions into the human existence on this planet.

“God judgeth the righteous, and God is angry with the wicked every day.”
PSALM 7:11 (KJ)

“The LORD trieth the righteous: but the wicked and him that loveth violence his soul hateth.”
PSALM 11 (KJ)

White Male Backlash, Part Three. Please Read Part One, International Daily Devotional Archives, Saturday, 8, November 2008. This devotional is related to the American election in 2008. Father God and His Christ bless and keep you and your family, your ministry your business, your education, your going in and your gone out and all that you do, by the power of the Love of Christ Jesus of Nazareth. Amen.

This devotional should probably be not labeled white male backlash, but more appropriately, corporate backlash or Fat Cat Robber Baron backlash. There is absolutely a corporate backlash going on in America. It is going on in corporate America, in politics, (which is the easiest place to see it); please note and read the devotional, which talks about the “Divided Kingdom.” Do a Google search on the eBlessings web site for it. America is presently in the “divided kingdom” model; this is the model of Israel and Judah. When King Solomon had a divided heart because of his idolatry, which divided the kingdom of Israel into Israel and Judah—two kingdoms. America is now divided by politics, Republicans and Democrats, liberals and conservatives, heterosexuals and homosexuals, people of color and people of non-color, the rich and the poor, and the middle class and the poor; there are also other divisions, which I will not mention now.

President Obama, being the first black president, (some people will dispute that), has not completed all of his political appointments because of white conservative Republican backlash. Now in the newspapers and magazines and on the Internet and television, you can see that there is a white military leadership backlash. With over 1,000 billionaires in America, the US economy and its economic trends are based on Wall Street, with Asian billionaires outnumbering European billionaires; with billionaires being spoken of, like they were millionaires as if everyone and their brother is a millionaire or can become a millionaire. What you must know is-- that money came from somewhere--and we know where it is going.

The poor are suffering while the rich are getting richer. This has to stop somewhere; this has to stop sometime. Someone needs to put the brakes on greed in America and white Anglo-Saxon world politics. When you have white male Republicans in the Congress and the Senate, not allowing the unemployment compensation benefits to go forward; have they lost their minds--do they not know that people need to eat and have a place to stay? Do they not know that there are elderly people in homes that do not have air conditioning? Do they not know that they are single mothers with children who need food and clothing and shelter? What is wrong with the American public by not responding by allowing this to be so? What is wrong with the American political system, which now attacks people of color (African-American incarcerated and Mexican native born) while promoting homosexuality; and allowing the status quo to continue as its destructive power destroying the American family fabric? Where is the church in all of this?

I told you about how I was at the Golden Corral in the great state of Georgia in Snellville and a white Republican called the police on me, another black woman and Mrs. Elliott (an elderly white woman who yesterday had a birthday). Now let me tell you another story about Mrs. Brown. Again, this is a true story. Remember, we are in Georgia, which was a slave state and has a residual effect of having slave mentality with some of its black residents and "massah" mentality with many of its older white residents.

Mrs. Brown with RKK Incorporated, a Realty company, is a highly fashionable African-American woman. She is a little less than 5 feet tall, pecan-tan, and she weighs under 100 pounds. Their company purchases eight to nine homes a month from the DeKalb County courthouse steps, which they renovate, rent, or sale. The company is highly successful, and they will help anyone within reason, get into a rental property, and help them to get their finances in order so they can purchase their rental property or own their own home. So this woman is an upper-class woman, one who I would call bourgeoisie. She carries herself as an upper-class person; she has a driver, and several employees at the real estate company--which includes contractors who renovate their properties.

Mrs. Brown went out to eat at the S&S cafeteria in the Chamblee Tucker area of Georgia. This is on the outskirts of Atlanta, or one could say that it is located in metropolitan Atlanta. This restaurant supposedly has quality food, which is quite enjoyable. Its clientele though is typically white conservative Republican-types who have lived in the area for many years as they watched their farmlands, and their properties go into the hands of industry, school systems, and the likes of Wal-Mart. They have watched their neighborhoods change as African-Americans, Mexicans, and Asians moved into their neighborhoods, their businesses and into their lives vicariously.

So Mrs. Brown is at the S&S cafeteria, because she enjoys the food and maybe also because it makes her feel like she has broken through the glass ceiling and won some type of acceptance in the Georgia economic fabric. Ms. Brown leaves her table and goes to the restroom to wash your hands before her food comes. What she encounters is what many people of color encounter in one form or fashion here in Georgia and in this new "Tea Party" America. If you are a person of color, living in America, you should know what I am talking about. Now I believe for one of the first real times in his life, President Obama is experiencing racism firsthand.

Ms. Brown enters the restroom and takes care of her business and heads to the wash basins. The wash basins, the sinks, have elderly white women standing there conversing, some washing their hands, but they all are taking up the space in front of the basins. Being the polite person that Mrs. Brown is, because she sees every person as a potential sale, she stands at a distance and waits; this is a typical North Carolinian polite nature. Yes, Mrs. Brown is from North Carolina.

So, as Mrs. Brown is standing there, one of the elderly ladies, with their white hair all fixed just right in a “beehive” says to Mrs. Brown, “Excuse me, do you need to get to the sinks to clean to clean them?” Now, Mrs. Brown does not look at all like the hire help or someone dressed to clean the bathroom. Mrs. Brown looks at her coldly, the lady looks at Mrs. Brown. Mrs. Brown probably makes four or five times what her entire household earns economically. Mrs. Brown told me that she would not honor that comment with a response; that she knew where that response was coming from i.e., racism, and she was not going to have any part of it.

You see Mrs. Brown, was there in Greensboro, North Carolina. When the black students came in and sat at the infamous lunch counter. She and her mother were there shopping, as the students from A&T College came in and set at the predominately white, the “whites only” lunch counter. She said that was the strangest thing to see. The whites there who worked behind the counter did not know what to do, because they had never seen anyone of color sit at the counter before. Those students were not going to move, so the hired help behind the counter went to get the management. Mrs. Brown and her mother stood there and giggled at the commotion that the students had caused not knowing that this was one of the starts of the civil rights movement in Greensboro, North Carolina and around the United States of America.
